

Join FEEdS

Membership to suit your Organisation

Benefits

Monthly intelligence briefings on the world of education, skills, recruitment and employment.

Tailored briefing papers on key policies and reports.

Platforms for well-informed and stimulating debate with ministers and leading experts.

Opportunities to network with your peers from business, government and education, and to influence thinking.

Access to the FEEdS library of reports and briefings, to online forums and to FEEdS expertise.

Regular members' newsletters.

Fees

Over 500 employees	£2,500
250-500 employees	£1,250
50-250 employees	£750
Under 50 employees	£450

Join

Contact Coral Rayfield on feds@feds.co.uk or go to our website, where you can join online.

www.feds.co.uk

The Team

Rachael Campey, Chief Executive, leads the strategic development of FEEdS, extending its collaborative work and exploring solutions and new ways of working in an era of reform.

Coral Rayfield manages all the day-to-day business, including membership support and organisation of FEEdS events.

Elaine Hendry is responsible for our monthly UK Briefing, policy briefing papers and seminar papers – described by members as “a lifesaver”.

Angela Gardner supports the FEEdS network in Scotland and is responsible for our highly-regarded Scotland Briefing.

Andrew Thomson, a former FE principal and chief executive, provides valuable advice and consultancy support.

Contact Us

FEEdS Consultancy Limited

Prospects House, 19 Elmfield Road, Bromley BR1 1LT

☎ 01483 427255

✉ feds@feds.co.uk

Connect
Collaborate
Make a difference

www.feds.co.uk

FEdS – a unique forum

FEdS connects senior experienced people from education, business and government so that they can collaborate and make a difference through the creation of effective policy and informed practice.

FEdS uniquely provides a neutral space for stimulating discussion, creative thinking and collaboration across the UK. Our members are blue chip companies, government agencies and educational organisations.

Tailored monthly Briefings for the UK provide up-to-date intelligence about matters relating to education, skills and employment.

Additional briefing papers provide accessible summaries of key policy developments. An archive of papers is available to members online.

We regularly hold small seminars, dinners and conferences with leading policy figures to encourage discussion and networking. All members receive summary papers after the event.

We also respond to individual members' requests for occasional in-house seminars and tailored briefing papers.

FEdS in Scotland

Recognising that many of the issues of interest to members are different in Scotland, we ensure members are kept up-to-date through an optional monthly Scotland Briefing and additional papers on major initiatives.

We also organise occasional member seminars in Scotland, and look for opportunities to enable our members to network with others, both via our monthly UK newsletter and through a newly-established pan-professional network.

Consultancy

FEdS has a team of Associates who are experienced senior consultants who have all held executive and leadership posts in business, government and education.

They bring that experience to bear through teams that work with senior and middle management to drive organisational change, transform culture and implement new ways of working.

www.feds.co.uk

Q&A

Who joins FEdS?

Senior figures from education, business and government who want to contribute to and be informed by policy and practice.

Blue chip companies, government agencies and educational organisations that need to keep abreast of what's happening in the world of education, skills and employment.

Is there a charge?

Yes. FEdS members pay an annual fee that varies depending on the size of organisation. The fee includes all our Briefings, papers and attendance at seminars. Members pay a reduced rate for special conferences and other events.

Is FEdS just thinking and talking?

No. As a result of our work we have instigated a number of programmes that have filled recognised gaps in the education and skills systems. The e-Learning Foundation is just one.

How do I join?

Use the Contact Us details overleaf to get in touch.